

Gramex – Highlights of the year 2024

THANK YOU!
FOR THE MUSIC gramex

Our partner,

Welcome to read our digital annual review!

Gramex has the goal of being one of the best - and therefore one of the most responsible - copyright services in the world.

As part of its sustainability programme, Gramex calculated the carbon footprint of its own operations for the first time.

- A total of 29.066 million euros in accrued remuneration was collected from music use.
- The background music sector (12.178 million), radio and television use (8.280 million) and internet and network use (4.693 million) yielded the highest remuneration.
- Gramex's performer and producer clients were yet again productive. During 2024, 19 938 recordings were reported to Gramex.
- During the year, Gramex was the first to implement the new and accurate DDEX statement for producer account reporting.
- The adoption of the ISNI identifier was also continued, and the use of marketing automation in customer service and communication was further developed.
- The global use of the Apollo rights management system, developed by Gramex in collaboration with BiConcepts, expanded.
- Gramex continued the AV Music pilot service in partnership with Teosto. Throughout the year, 154 different AV productions were serviced in music licensing matters.

Carbon Footprint 2024

Gramex's new sustainability programme provides a framework for promoting responsibility work and open communication. It also includes completely new areas of development, for example in the field of environmental responsibility.

This year Gramex calculated the carbon footprint of its own operations for the first time.
